

Thinking through (im)mobilities:

A research agenda in investigating a migrant's digital lifeworld

Dr Earvin Charles B. Cabalquinto
Deakin University

This presentation investigates the diverse impacts of modern communication technologies on the personal, familial and social lives of migrants.

Extending the mobilities lens in the context of digital and transnational communication, it interrogates the possibilities and politics produced by the mediation of both mobilities and stasis as reflected in a migrant's diverse digital practices.

Drawing from ten years of study on the transnational and digital lives of migrants in Melbourne, this presentation illuminates the patterns and consequences of mediated (in)voluntary (im)mobilities in a migrant's life, advancing our understanding of the (im)mobility turn in an increasingly digital and transnational world.
